LEARNING TO WORK WITH UNCERTAINTY

IF THERE'S ONE THING CERTAIN IN BUSINESS, IT'S UNCERTAINTY.

WHO WE ARE?

Tali Padan recently earned a PhD at Copenhagen Business School. Her work focused on how and what management students learn from immersing in extended periods of uncertainty and dissonance in the classroom. Their enhanced reflexive abilities prove that learning through uncertainty leads to responsible and holistic styles of leadership. As Director of Mellem Education for over ten years, Tali is an experienced facilitator in corporate and organizational settings.

TESTIMONIAL

"The workshop prompted us to look at ourselves in a new way. It was educational. You can get tired of smart consultants with PowerPoint presentations to train executives. Tali's approach is present and involves everyone in a new and inspiring way with focus on the participants." – Katja, Boligkontoret Danmark

WHAT WE DO?

We provide trainings and workshops that bring out existing tensions in the workplace, including issues of hierarchy, power, interpersonal and intercultural differences. Bringing these tensions out allows participants to openly discuss and work through challenging conversations, giving an opportunity to express needs and change the relationships between group members. This brings a more pleasant atmosphere to the workplace, enhances employee wellbeing and ensures mature and responsible practices in the workplace and in society.
